Beer Sales Ruled By Public Opinion

Montgomery, Ala., June 28—David E. Dunn, director of Alabama's beer industry, told the Montgomery Kiwanis Club today that "public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about the orderly conduct of retail beer outlets which we all so earnestly desire."

Mr. Dunn outlined the self-regulation program of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee which was organized by wholesale beer distributors controlling 95 per cent of the beer supply of the state to cooperate with the Alabama ABC Board and other law enforcement agencies in "cleaning up or closing up" the bad spots among the 1,600 retail beer outlets in Alabama's 25 wet counties.

Mr. Dunn said that during 1938 the beer industry in Alabama employed more than 5,000 citizens with a payroll of more than $4,700,000, and paid state, county, and city taxes exceeding $1,000,000 for the privilege of selling the 281,000 barrels of beer which Alabamians consumed that year.

The ABC Board, since the self-regulation program was launched March 16, has revoked 20 retail beer licenses, and suspended 21 others. The Beer Committee, in addition to initiating 14 of these cases, sent warnings to more than 45 other outlets that conditions there must improve or their licenses would be subject to revocation.

"Through the wholehearted cooperation of the ABC Board, the county and city officials, and the press of Alabama, I sincerely believe that our program has brought about 100 per cent improvement in the conduct of retail beer outlets," Mr. Dunn told the Kiwanis Club. "We want you, as representative citizens, to understand what we are trying to do. Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about the orderly conduct of retail beer outlets which we all so earnestly desire. Restriction of your patronage to legal, respectable retail outlets can and will operate to improve and maintain the high standards all Alabamians want."

Business Women Hold Meeting And Picnic

The Business and Professional Women's Club held its regular meeting Friday evening, June 23, in the form of a picnic at the home of Misses Ann Eastman and Ethel Reasoner. The supper plans were under the able direction of Mrs. P. E. Woolley, and proved to be most delicious, featuring fried chicken and watermelon.

Decisions were made by the club to join the Columbiana club in the drive against Tuberculosis in Shelby County. Mrs. Alice Yeager and Miss Ethel Reasoner were appointed to arrange for publicity. More detailed plans will be announced later.

Dr. Hallie Farmer will arrange for the next meeting of the club, which will also be in the form of a picnic supper at the College View Apartment. The date has been tentatively set for Friday evening, July 14.

Cut garden flowers were used which were later sent to Mrs. S. M. Mahan, who was unable to attend because of illness.

Those attending were Miss Ethel Reasoner, Miss Ann Eastman, Miss Minnie B. Tracey, Mrs. P. E. Woolley, Dr. Hallie Farmer, Miss Minnie L. Steckel, Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. Roy Hicks, Mrs. Denson Elliott, and two new members, Mrs. P. M. Cain and Dr. Joyce Kellogg.

Mrs. Johnson Honored With Tea Shower

Saturday, June 24, Mrs. Lawson Ingram was hostess at a tea shower from 3 to 5 o'clock at her home on the Spring Creek Road, Montevallo, in honor of Mrs. O. M. Johnson, who before her marriage in late spring was Miss Sue Beonica Ingram.

Urns of gladioli were decorative features in the home.

Receiving were the hostess, Mrs. Lawson Ingram, who wore blue crepe; the honoree, Mrs. Johnson, who was lovely in black mesh styled on princess lines accented with white lace, with corsage of delphinium, pink rosebuds and baby breath; Mrs. T. W. Ingram, mother of Mrs. Johnson, in blue lace, and Mrs. Alexander, grandmother of the honoree, in black crepe.

Miss Annie Laura Ingram and Miss Virginia Lockeridge received the gifts and Mrs. Max Allen, twin sister of the bride, displayed them.

Mrs. L. E. Graves of Calera and Mrs. Robert Frost of Montevallo served the guests.

Miss Louise Lucas of Montevallo, soprano, and Miss Louise Johnson of Calera, pianist, entertained with music during the afternoon.

Baptist Church

We are deeply grateful to God for the revival services that have just closed—for the earnest, spirit-filled messages brought by Dr. Purser, for the attendance at the services, for the splendid cooperation of the church members and others, and for the response on the part of those who came into the church. We want to thank all who had any part in the services. Especially are we grateful to the members of the other churches of the town for their cooperation, to the merchants for closing their places of business for the morning services, and to those who entertained so graciously in their homes. Humbly and gratefully do we thank God for Dr. Purser and for the glorious Gospel of grace which he so faithfully proclaims.

Dr. Pearson will preach at both morning and evening services next Sunday. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at the close of the evening services. It is our earnest prayer that a great many will come to unite with the church Sunday morning and Sunday evening, either by baptism or by letter.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Smith and Owen, Jr., and Mrs. N. L. Bridges, of Denver, Colorado, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bridges this week.

Mr. Bob Anderson visited friends in Auburn this week-end.

FOOD PERMITS REQUIRED SAYS HEALTH OFFICER

From time to time some new eating establishment will open for business or some grocer will butcher a cow or hog and offer the meat for sale without having a food permit from the Health Department, which is required of these establishments.

The public, in purchasing fresh meats or in buying sandwiches or other foods which are prepared in the establishment should look for the operator's food permit.

This permit should be displayed by the operator in a conspicuous place and is the customer's assurance that the regulations governing the preparation and sale of foods have been complied with.—E. F. Sloan, County Health Officer.

State Fair Will Present Industry On Parade

Department of Conservation To Have Large Exhibit On Alabama's Resources

"Alabama Industry on Parade" at the Alabama State Fair, October 2-7, will make up one of the most intelligent and comprehensive pageants of programs ever attempted at the state's annual show. Fact that an entire building has been given over to the industrial show, and that this building is the largest and most modern on the fair grounds simply goes to show to what lengths J. Warren Leach, executive vice-president, and Leon Gilbert, vice-president in charge of public relations, have gone in their efforts to make the industrial feature one of the most interesting in the entire enclosure. Karl Landgrebe, director of industries for the State Fair, is personally supervising these exhibits and is very enthusiastic over this new feature of the State Fair. The Wofford Building, an all-steel structure, will house the industrial exhibits.

Dr. Walter B. Jones will be in charge of the center of the building, which will be given over to forestry, wildlife, minerals and the like, gathered by the State Department of Conservation. One of the main features of this state-supervised center will be a diorama, constructed under the supervision of Dr. Jones, and stressing the natural resources of the state. There, too, will be found displays under special lighting effects, showing many minerals and ores of Alabama as they appear when first brought forth from the mines.

The entire scheme is one of education and enlightenment as to what is really taking place in industrial Alabama. One will be able to get the entire picture, showing the evolution of these minerals, ores, and raw products from their natural state until they reach the status of finished products and are ready for the markets of the world. In other words, there will be twenty-six available exhibit spaces around the outer walls of the building, and these will be taken up by industries of Alabama displaying what has been built from these raw materials, minerals, ores, and the like since they emerged from their primitive stages.

Accomplishments of the state along industrial lines have been so forcibly brought to the minds of the people of late, and so much educational work has been going on, depicting what is to be accomplished.

Winners Announced In Theatre Play Contest

Two Birmingham men, J. W. Bancroft and Amasa B. Windham, have been awarded prizes for the best long play and best short play submitted in the annual Alabama College Theatre playwriting contest, according to announcement today by Dr. Walter H. Trumbauer, director of the theatre.

Bancroft won the $40 prize for his long play, "Inherit the Earth," and Miss Clara Crenshaw, Greenville, received honorable mention for "Daybreak."

In the short play contest Windham won $10 for "Safe Is Democracy," and Miss Elizabeth Utterback was given honorable mention for "Fair Was the Morning."

The College Theatre usually includes winning contest plays in its production schedule for the coming year.

FEW SIMPLE RULES TO MAKE SWIMMING SAFE

The season for swimming and other water sports need not be marred by tragedies if simple precautions are observed, safety specialists of the National Conservation Bureau point out. They list the following rules for safety in the water:

1. Swim only at places protected by a guard.
 2. Never swim alone.
 3. Cooperate with guards by staying inside the safety lines.
 4. Stay out of deep water unless you are sure of your swimming ability.
 5. Do not go into the water immediately after eating.
- Parents are urged to have their children learn to swim under a competent instructor.

COTTON RESEARCH ON THE MARCH

The union of the Cotton Research Foundation with the National Cotton will bring applause from all sides. The move is a symbol of the unity with which cotton men are preparing for an attack on reduced consumption in this eleventh hour of their sad plight.

The Cotton Council gains a top-notch research division, ably staffed and already rich in experience and achievements. The Research Foundation gains a place in an organization which will represent its cause throughout the nation and tell the world of the new cotton uses that it develops. Seldom do two organizations, both alert, dynamic, and successful, pool their resources in this manner for the common good.

The Cotton Research Foundation summarizes its purpose thus: "(1) To originate basic new uses for the cotton plant, (2) to stop the trend away from cotton to substitutes." These brief words lay a finger on one of the nation's most desperate needs.

The per capita consumption of cotton in this country has undergone a notable decline in the past 20 years. Since industrial uses of cotton increased tremendously in this period, the reduced per capita consumption indicates a still larger loss of cotton usage in the home and on the person.

The fall in consumption has been accompanied by widespread substitution of artificial and imported fabrics. The competition from these sources has been repeatedly spurred by new scientific discoveries.

Cotton must save itself with an aggressive research program of its own. The coordination of the Cotton Research Foundation with the National Cotton Council augurs accelerated progress in this direction.

Letter To Times

To really know a man one would have to observe him in his home. There most restraints are thrown aside and he can be seen as he really is. There are other occasions, however, where opportunities are sometimes given the outsider to judge a man's true character.

Such an opportunity has been afforded the writer, when as a patient at the Veterans Hospital at Tuscaloosa, he is sharing a ward with three other men, including the genial editor of the Montevallo Times, Mr. W. M. Wyatt.

We esteem it a rare privilege to have made the acquaintance of this man who is so well known to you. Friendly, courteous, tolerant, clean in his conversation, thoroughly informed, a booster for Montevallo and surrounding territory—Mr. Wyatt is ably serving his community. A typical editor of a typical small-town newspaper, he exerts a tremendous influence for good in the Montevallo area. —Horace L. Pratt, Shawmut, Ala.

Conservation In Alabama and Its Need Of A State Wide Stock Law

By DR. WALTER B. JONES
Director, Alabama Department of Conservation

The first two duties and functions of the Alabama Department of Conservation, as stated in the Toomer Act passed this year by the Legislature, are as follows:

1. To protect, conserve and increase the wildlife of the State and to administer all laws relating to wildlife and the protection, conservation and increase thereof;
2. To protect, conserve and increase the timber and forest resources of the state and to administer all laws relating to timber and forestry and the protection, conservation and increase of such resources.

It may surprise many people to learn that passage of a statewide stock law is absolutely essential if the above objectives are to be accomplished. Conservation of wildlife and forest resources may appear at first thought to have little connection with a stock law, but closer examination will reveal the interlocked position of the problem.

In the past 12 months approximately 30,000 forest fires have raged throughout Alabama and caused untold damage to young timber. The great majority of these fires were traced directly to the annual burning program of cattle owners who hoped to hasten the growth of new grass which was of little nutritional value since it followed fire. It mattered little to non land owning cattle owners that these fires killed many thousands of young trees, stunted many others, and straying livestock, even in fire protected areas, are a detriment to proper timber growth for young pines are rooted up and buds nipped.

On the wildlife side, we find every year thousands, perhaps millions, of potential quail, wild turkeys and other wild birds lost through destruction of eggs by forest fires. Blackened nests, eggs seared and broken, birds fleeing from the inferno, Deer, squirrels, opossum, raccoon and many others trapped by flames and burned to a crisp. Even the fish do not escape.

Fried chicken week in Talladega County has really made the state sit up and take notice and caused farm people to look into the poultry business. So successful was Talladega that its neighboring town of Sylacauga also held one recently. Everybody is encouraged to eat fried chicken because it is good, because it helps business, and because it moves a surplus of chickens and helps the poultry raiser.

Ashes of burning trees and bushes settle on the ground and the rain carries this potash down to the lakes and streams. Fish, old and young are poisoned, or, if not poisoned, silt swept down from these denuded hills covers the spawning beds and destroys natural reproduction.

From the point of view of the conservationist, suppression of forest fires is necessary if any progress is to be made in saving and restoring natural resources. Restoring is perhaps the better word, for as it stands now, there is more restoring to be done than conserving or protection. So much has been wasted and slaughtered throughout past generations that there is comparatively little left to protect or conserve. It is chiefly a problem of restoration.

The law's mandate to "protect, conserve and increase" timber resources surely cannot be carried out as long as cattle, swine and sheep are allowed to stray, at will, their owners following and firing the land as they go.

Suppression of fires, therefore, depends directly upon the fencing up the scrub cattle and making it impossible for a man owning only 10 acres of land to have several hundred head of cattle grazing on other people's land.

Throughout Alabama there seems to be a growing sentiment in favor of a statewide stock law. The setback received in the Legislature, earlier this year, only added fuel to the flame. Garden clubs, conservation associations, timber owners and many others are working together in an effort to effect passage of a stock law.

The Legislature, meeting again in July, will offer a second chance to right a wrong and put an end to an uncivilized practice.

As head of the Alabama Department of Conservation, I appeal to all right thinking people to join with us in this struggle to save, what is left, of our forests and wildlife by putting fences around stray stock and reducing forest fires. The opportunity is here; let us not sleep at our posts.

WPA Workers Assist Farmers Of Alabama In Shortage Of Labor

With heavy rains throughout Alabama causing considerable damage to crops and holding up work in the fields, allowing grass to get a large headway in crops, farmers have already made appeals for additional labor and the appeals reach the offices of the Works Progress Administration in Montgomery have brought about a wholehearted movement of cooperation from officials of the WPA in allowing project workers to hire out to those farmers in need of additional labor to cope with grass and the problem of salvaging crops as a result of the extensive rains.

In a statement issued recently, Colonel W. G. Henderson, Alabama administrator of the Works Progress Administration, he said, "It is our desire to give every ounce of cooperation we can in providing additional labor for those farmers requesting it. We realize the situation they are up against and we certainly intend to help where and when possible."

Letters being received by the WPA offices in Montgomery have been high in their praise of the cooperation of the WPA in this emergency and many have gone so far as to say that the workers secured from the WPA have shown a most commendable attitude and have entered into the work with much greater zest than has been anticipated.

In counties where the demand arises for farm labor to meet the problems being faced at this time, WPA projects that can be suspended without loss in materials and money, are being temporarily shut down to allow the workers to accept employment on farms. "Of course," Col Henderson stated, "we realize this employment on the farms is only temporary and we have let it be known that if a WPA worker had an opportunity to secure this work he would be reassigned to WPA work if he was still in need after the farm job was completed. This procedure is being followed in all counties where the requests are made and provided there is a sufficient number of WPA workers available, and provided further the farmer is financially able to pay the workers the prevailing wage for such farm labor in their respective counties.

"So far, not one statement of dissatisfaction has been received on the work being done on farms by those taken from WPA rolls," Col. Henderson stated. "The greatest need for this additional help on farms has come from the northern part of the state and some from

NEW LIGHT WEIGHT METALS REVOLUTIONIZE DESIGN

(1) Clarke Troller, lightest outboard motor in the world for its power; 1.3 horsepower, only 9½ lbs. (2) Kayak propelled by Troller. (3) Latest type of Bohnalite piston with positive expansion control.

DESIGNS, which only a very short time ago would have seemed impossible, are now being achieved with the new light weight alloys. The little Troller motor shown herewith weighs only 9½ pounds and yet it develops 1.3 horsepower. This light weight is achieved not only through design but through the fact that permanent mold castings of Bohnalite are employed. This strong but light aluminum alloy has proven itself extremely well suited for light weight powerplants, such as this, and has even made an enviable record for itself in the big, powerful airplane engines used for transport as well as war machines.

The cutaway piston shown here is an Autothermic type, which has the unique ability of holding its shape and clearance whether the engine is starting cold or is running at its highest operating temperatures. This also is an example of the use of Bohnalite. This type of piston made from this material is used on cars such as the American Bantam all the way up to some of the heavier duty Diesel design. The introduction of light aluminum and magnesium alloys, such as Bohnalite and Magallöy, is completely changing engineering processes and methods. It is making possible much lighter and more efficient powerplants for land, air and sea.

the central part, and we see no reason for anyone saying that they are unable to secure the needed farm labor in this crisis due to WPA because we are certainly lending an ear to any appeals made and endeavoring to give immediate action. It is most gratifying to us to hear that our efforts toward this end are meeting with the desired results."

Farmers desiring to use labor from the WPA rolls will make requisition through the county agent's office for the number of men wanted and should also notify the county agent when the workers have served their purpose.

Boy Scouts To Meet At World's Fair

"If I had a son," J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said not long ago, "I'd encourage him to join the Boy Scouts. They are building for the nation a useful, manly type of citizen to accept the responsibilities which time places upon him." The 75,000 Scouts, leaders, parents, and friends who will jam the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair on Thursday afternoon, June 29, will expect the head G-Man, hero of millions of present-day boys, to reveal again his high regard and esteem for the Boy Scout movement.

Walter W. Head of St. Louis, president of the Boy Scouts of America, is to preside at the half hour Court of Peace mobilization, made colorful by the presence of many thousands of national flags and the standards of Scout troops and patrols. Then in full view of the largest group of Scouts ever brought together, 500 or more 21-year-old Scouts or former Scouts, presented by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, vice-president of the National Council, will pledge to Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the Supreme Court of the United States, their participation as active voting citizens, in accordance with the spirit and provisions of the Scout Oath and Law. Grover A. Whalen, president of the World's Fair Corporation, will welcome the Scout party to the fair and in reply to a New York City Scout, selected on merit to represent the 1,289,746 present Scout enrollment, will thank him and other officials for making possible the Boy Scout share in the fair.

SAVE AGRICULTURAL ALABAMA

By HAYGOOD PATERSON
Commissioner of Agriculture

The Garden Clubs of Alabama have the long cherished dream of beautified highways. Outstanding is the work done by this organization in city beautiful movements and wherever there is a Garden Club a more beautiful community blossoms. Alabama is rapidly growing into a state of beauty. Outstanding gardens are developing over its length and breadth.

Nothing will help to develop our state faster than highway beautification. I mean a scheme of using suitable spots along our highways to establish colonies of our native plants to charm the passer-by with foliage, flower, fragrance and berry. Think of a highway in Spring with Jasmine, Dogwood, Redbud, Magnolia, Hawthorn, Hydrangea, Fringe Tree and countless other beauties of our woods flaunting their glory to the passing world. With our varied flora Alabama highways can be made the most beautiful in America.

But all of this can never be realized if Alabama does not have a stock law. Marauding cattle and hogs have no respect for beauty. The day we can take off the highways, the woodlands and the cultivated fields, the tramp of livestock and put them into pastures, then will Alabama make real progress in beautification, conservation and Agriculture.

I am interested in a state wide stock law because we need to advertise our possibilities to the world and demonstrate that we can raise everything in Alabama that is useful and beautiful. We need a stock law in Alabama because only when animals are put in pastures can our woodlands, comprising 66% of our land, be saved from fire and its pauperizing consequence. We need a stock law in Alabama because "turning out" of cattle is but part of the program of laying by and a year around profitable land use allots the tillable land to row crops, the woodland to forest products and the fenced pasture to domestic animals.

Years ago the cry was get rid of the scrub bull. I say that we should, as rapidly as possible, get rid of the scrub animal as such an animal represents neither progress nor profit.

May we not soon see the day when Alabama may have beautiful, animal free highways, well conserved woodlands, improved permanent pastures and busy farm lands. Then will our sons and daughters look upon our land and say it is good and by their efforts make Alabama flourish like a green tree beside the beautiful stream.

It's Flea Time On The Farm

Auburn, Ala.—It's flea time in Alabama. At least J. M. Robinson, head of the entomology department of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, believes it is from the number of inquiries he has received regarding the control of these pests.

He has received inquiries from Pike, Henry and a number of other counties that fleas are in the house on the beds, in the barn, milkshed, on all the domestic animals—in fact, folks are finding fleas everywhere.

Robinson says fleas "keel over" dead when they come in contact with rotenone. You can get rotenone from commercial sources either in the form of derris, cube of timbo root. Any of these materials diluted with an equal part of talc will kill fleas.

"This rubbed into the hair of cats, dogs, and rabbits, will control the fleas. It is effective when dusted on the floors of houses and dog kennels and around and on rugs of your own home," says Robinson.

The Legislature shall also make provision by law, not inconsistent with this article, for the regulation of primary elections and for punishing frauds at the same, but shall not make primary elections compulsory. The Legislature shall by law provide for purging the registration list of the names of those who die, become insane, or convicted of crime, or otherwise disqualified as electors under the provisions of this Constitution, and of any names which may have been fraudulently entered on such list by the registrars; provided, that a trial by jury may be had on the demand of any person whose name is proposed to be stricken from the list."

Health Officer Appeals For Child Health

The summer vacation will pass swiftly, and before most people realize it is over, the fall will be here and Alabama's approximately two-thirds of a million school pupils will set themselves again to the tasks of acquiring an education. Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, pointed out today in an appeal to parents to see to it that their children are in the best possible physical condition for the business of learning. His appeal, he said, was directed mainly to parents of children about to start to school.

"Irregular attendance almost always has a serious effect upon a pupil's scholastic record, and attendance is largely influenced by the pupil's health," he said. "While some illness cannot be avoided, much of it is entirely preventable. Much of it, too, is due to conditions that could have been corrected before the pupil started to school. Parents of children expecting to enter school this fall should have them examined for physical defects and should attempt to have such defects corrected before starting-to-school time."

Dr. Baker called attention to reports of the State Department of Education showing that on an average school day nearly one-fifth of all pupils enrolled in the state's high schools and elementary schools during the 1936-37 term were absent.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Kendrick and Mr. Boots Kendrick enjoyed a motor trip to Mobile and Pensacola, Fla., last week.

Mr. Bernard Hines of Siluria was a visitor in town Tuesday morning.

WILTON NEWS

Rev. L. T. Reeves delivered a very inspiring sermon Sunday morning on "Christian Education" and appealed to us as Baptists to help support our denominational school, Howard College, which is so badly in need of funds. If other messages in the state were as earnestly given, we're sure the responses must have been generous. Rev. and Mrs. Reeves and daughters, Misses Wynelle, Vida, and Myrna, and son, L. T., Jr., recently moved into our community from Vinemont. We're proud of our new pastor and his family and a cordial welcome is being extended them by our good people.

The B. T. U. study course conducted at the Baptist Church last week was well attended by all unions of the department.

On Monday afternoon the W. M. S. met at the Baptist Church for a business meeting. Mrs. B. B.

Curry taught the first chapter of our mission study class. On Thursday afternoon from 4:30 to 5:30, Mrs. Curry and Mrs. M. W. Whetstone will teach chapters in "Go Forward" by Mrs. J. W. Burton. The course will be completed by Mrs. L. T. Reeves next Monday. We urge all members to attend these meetings.

Two ball games were played over the week-end by our Wilton team. The first was with Pelham at Wilton, and the visitors won. The second was at Belle Ellen and our boys won.

Rose Diseases Can Be Stopped

If diseases are keeping you from getting those good roses that you want or think you should be getting from your yard or garden, it is more than likely one of three prevalent rose diseases, says Home Alabama Extension Service.

Fisher says that two types of insects and three kinds of diseases are the major problems facing the rose grower. The diseases are mildew, black spot, and cankers. He offers the following descriptions of the three diseases with suggestions on how to control and prevent them from causing damage.

Mildew is a disease that attacks the stems, leaves, and flower buds. It develops more in wet weather and is particularly bad where there is little circulation of air in shaded areas.

Mildew can be removed from roses by using a medium to strong solution of baking soda. This, however, will not give a permanent control.

The use of a very fine dusting sulphur (not flowers of sulphur) is most generally recommended. The plants should be dusted thoroughly about every two weeks. The dusting sulphur should be applied during the hot part of the day.

Black spot is a leaf disease that is often found on roses. The use of a dust made of one part of arsenate of lead and nine parts of dusting sulphur is recommended by the American Rose Society as a control measure for both the black spot and mildew.

Bordeaux mixture is an effective control measure for black spot. However, it discolors the foliage of the plant.

Cankers attack the stems of roses. The best control measure for cankers is to remove all diseased stems as soon as they appear and paint the cuts with some disinfectant such as potassium permanganate. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture is a good preventive measure.

Cutworm Damage Is Serious In State

Auburn, Ala. — Reports from county agents that cutworm infestation is high caused W. A. Ruffin, entomologist of the Alabama Extension Service, to forward control methods to all agents for the benefit of farmers.

Ruffin said cutworms caused considerable damage last year and that by using a fairly inexpensive poison bran mash serious infestation could be checked. He lists two methods by which cutworms can be combatted in the garden or in the field.

Twenty pounds of wheat bran, 1 pound of paris green or two pounds of arsenate of lead, one-half gallon of syrup, 3½ gallons of water. Mix the wheat bran and the poison dry in the manner of mixing fertilizer; then add the sweetened water slowly until all the wheat bran is moist. The above formula is sufficient for about two acres.

It is suggested that those farmers who will have an abundant supply of cabbage available chop up, as for slaw, some of this cabbage and sprinkle lead arsenate over it at the rate of two pounds to a bushel of cabbage. The poisoned cabbage may then be used instead of the wheat bran. It should be distributed along the rows late in the afternoon or at night.

A. H. Turner, Moulton, Lawrence County, believes in work stock production. He has a jack and horse and in the past three years has been responsible for his neighbors getting 40 mule colts and 10 horse colts which is helping to save money for the farmers near him.

DIXON ASKS AID FOR AMENDMENTS

Stresses Fact Proposed Changes Will Improve State Conditions

MONTGOMERY. — Appealing directly to the people for support of five constitutional amendments up for ratification in a special election July 11, Governor Frank Dixon this week emphasized that all of the proposals are linked with the broad program to improve governmental conditions in Alabama.

Assurances of support came from daily newspaper editors and officials of the Alabama Press Association with whom the governor discussed the amendments in his office one day last week. Earlier, the ratification campaign was given an important boost when several hundred delegates to the annual convention of the Alabama Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association at Mobile pledged active support of the amendments reforming the state's pardon and parole system and allowing defendants in criminal cases, except those charged with capital offenses, to plead guilty and begin serving sentences without awaiting Grand Jury indictment.

The five amendments would:

1. Authorize the Legislature to establish a modern, non-political pardon, parole and probation system, taking from the governor all power over pardons and paroles except the authority to commute or reprieve in death cases. This amendment was submitted to the people by the Legislature in a move to carry out Governor Dixon's campaign pledge to rid Alabama forever of the blight of the parole racket which has flourished in the past.

2. Provide for biennial, instead of quadrennial sessions of the Legislature. The governor pointed out that Alabama is the only state in the union in which the Legislature meets regularly only once every four years. He stressed the point that it is impossible to budget for a four-year period, and that in the past many special sessions have been necessary. By changing over to a system under which sessions would be held each two years, limited to 60 calendar days, plus an organization session of 10 calendar days, the legislative department's work could be handled with increased efficiency and dispatch, and at a huge saving to the taxpayers, he pointed out.

3. Authorize the Legislature to legalize the use of voting machines in counties desiring them. This amendment is purely permissive, and was submitted in order to circumvent constitutional restrictions which now make impossible the use of voting machines by two or three counties desiring to install them.

4. Permit investment of trust funds in securities guaranteed by federal agencies. Ratification of this proposal would enable the Legislature to make effective a plan for investment of trust funds in a manner fully protecting the public interest.

5. Allow felons, excepting those accused of capital crimes, to enter pleas of guilty in advance of Grand Jury action. This amendment would expedite the administration of justice and speed up the processes of courts throughout the state.

Governor Dixon and members of the Legislature carefully studied all of the proposed amendments prior to their submission, and convinced themselves that the proposals not only will make for better government in the state, but pave the way for additional economies.

The governor declared he had no doubt that all five amendments would carry by an overwhelming vote if the people of Alabama acquaint themselves with the provisions and purposes of each proposal. With the election only about three weeks away and no organized opposition having appeared, reports from over the state this week indicated a decisive vote of ratification for each amendment.

Alabama ranked at the bottom in 1929 with only two and a half per cent of the cotton crop 15/16 inch and longer. In 1938 63.6 per cent of the crop was of the better staple bringing an additional one million dollars to growers.

Home Town Boy Makes Good — at Home

ALWAYS gratifying is the news that one of the home-town boys has made good in far places. But how much more gratifying it is to know that he has made good in his native state! One of the results of the work of our New Industries Division, since its establishment in 1923, has been the creation of wider opportunities for the boys and girls of Alabama—opportunities for employment and advancement in the industries which have established plants in Alabama, often as the result of years of solicitation and constant presentation of the many advantages Alabama has to offer expanding industry.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

A Private Agency for the Public Good

"I have said many times the Alabama Power Company has done more to develop Alabama than any corporation in the State, because I have watched you from infancy; we would not have a lot of the industries we have at Opelika if it had not been for you."

—J. W. Dupree,
Route 2, Opelika, Ala.

"Within the past few years the Alabama Power Company has been instrumental in securing a number of new industries for this section. Some of these import raw materials and some export manufactured products."

—Mrs. Annie S. Howard,
1158 Church St.,
Mobile, Ala.

"Furthermore the part which the Alabama Power Company is taking in helping to develop Alabama industrially and agriculturally to furnish opportunities for our boys and girls to remain at home when they have finished their schooling will result in a better state for coming generations of Alabamians."

—Mrs. Jack P. Friday,
Plantersville, Ala.

"It helps to bring new factories to consume Alabama's raw materials and to give employment to thousands of willing workers."

—H. H. Greene, Jr.,
209 Lexington Rd.,
Montgomery, Ala.

"I can see many industries brought to Alabama through the influence of the Alabama Power Company, giving employment to thousands of people at a living wage."

—R. L. Fancett,
Prattville, Ala.

"It is a well-established fact that the Alabama Power Company has been one of the principal driving forces behind our state industrial development for many years."

AAA To Furnish Winter Legume Seed In Fall

Auburn, Ala.—Announcement that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration would furnish vetch and Austrian winter pea seed to Alabama farmers next fall under a grant-of-aid plan was made here today by A. W. Jones, head of the AAA in the state.

A questionnaire recently sent out by the AAA revealed considerable interest on the part of farmers for the plan under which the latter would be issued legume seed and would have the pay for these seed deducted from their AAA payments. The plan is already in operation for triple superphosphate and lime.

Jones said that the county agents had been advised to accept applications from farmers for these seed. Although prices on the seed have not been set, Jones said that every effort will be made by the AAA to protect the farmers' interest as to price, quality of seed, germination, etc.

The grant-of-aid plan which allows farmers to get fertilizer and legume seed without cash outlay is expected to further increase the acreage of winter legumes in Alabama. While this state used to lead the South in winter legume planting, operation of the legume seed plan in Mississippi has allowed that state to surpass Alabama in the acreage of winter legumes, it is stated.

The farmer, as in the procedure with lime and triple superphosphate, makes application to his county AAA committee. The committee tabulates this farmer's AAA payment allowance and places the order for the seed. The AAA then deducts the amount sufficient to pay for the seed from the farmer's

STATE COTTON GROUPS PLAN STATE-WIDE DRIVE

Members of the county committee units of the National Cotton Council of America were intensifying this week the drive to carry the state over the top in the campaign to bring together all interests of cotton groups into an organization embracing all cotton growing states, according to a statement released today by Will Howard Smith, chairman of the finance committee, following an enthusiastic directors meeting in Montgomery Tuesday. Mr. Smith stated that several counties have already gone over the top in realizing their organization allotment quotas, and encouraging reports are being received daily from every section of the state.

Final touches were applied to plans Tuesday to intensify the drive to make Alabama one of the banner states of the council.

All persons and groups directly and indirectly dependent or affected by cotton and its by-products, should enlist in the campaign to restore and perpetuate the South's greatest product, he urged. Committee chairmen and groups are urged to complete their county quotas at an early date, remitting immediately, direct to the headquarters office, 620 Shepherd Building, Montgomery, or to Mr. E. C. Bassett, Secretary-Treasurer, Troy.

payments. Jones said application could be made now for the lime and for the winter legume seed. Price and delivery will be facilitated, he said, if each county that participates will order at least one carload.

Most of the legume seed are now being handled in Alabama through the county exchanges of the Farmers' Marketing and Exchange Association with headquarters in Montgomery.

plished in Alabama in the manner of building payrolls for the people and giving the state itself working capital, that Messrs. Leach, Gilbert, and Landgrebe are even now bemoaning the fact that the Wofford Building, the largest on the grounds, hasn't more floor space. They are meeting with such hearty cooperation that it looks as if the twenty-six spaces now available will soon be exhausted.

It is interesting to note just how the State Conservation Department has grown during the last few years. Only about three years ago the department was content with a very small exhibit space on the second floor of the grandstand building. This department has created so much interest from year to year, and has grown in such interest and volume that the entire center of the Wofford Building has been given over to the conservation exhibit. One may gather the magnitude of the undertaking by remembering that on one year the entire U. S. Government exhibits and the Florida exhibit, brought here from the Century of Progress, occupied the space that is now being given over to the State Conservation Department.

With such elaborate preparations being made to give fair visitors a industrial Alabama, and with such vivid and imaginative picture of attention being given as to what will go into these exhibits, it means that Dr. Jones and his co-workers, plus the group placed in charge of the varied industrial displays, will be busy from now until the gates swing open October 2 in the art of designing and building such an elaborate feature.

MODERATION

HISTORY...

Alabama beer distributors sincerely believe their product is a wholesome food beverage, one that has worn the robe of moderation for more than 6,000 years.

The Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock instead of proceeding to their original destination of Virginia because provisions aboard the Mayflower were running low. The actual record of the journey states: "For we could not now take further time for search or consideration; our victuals being much spent, especially our beer."

TODAY...

In these modern times, the beer industry recognizes that conditions sometimes surround the sale of beer which are undesirable to us all, wets and dries alike. To help Alabama's active ABC Board eliminate these bad spots, the beer industry of Alabama on March 16 launched a program of self-regulation, placed its conduct in the hands of David E. Dunn, former administrator of the ABC Board. The goal was to "clean up or close up" the law-violating outlets which were bringing criticism upon an industry paying wages and taxes exceeding $5,000,000 annually to Alabamians and Alabama.

Since that time the ABC Board, in addition to continuing its own drive, has revoked 10 retail beer licenses and suspended 2 in cases initiated by the industry itself. Director Dunn has sent warnings to 42 retail outlets that conditions there must improve.

THE FUTURE...

We are sincere in our efforts to assure the patrons of today and tomorrow of clean, wholesome conditions in the state of Alabama. You, the public, can help by patronizing only reputable, law-abiding outlets.
